

April Menck
Chief Information Officer

Executive Summary

As Chief Information Officer for Latter & Blum Property Management, April oversees the company information technology operations and business systems. Her team provides support services across all facets of applications ensuring internal controls for financial systems are maintained, company protocol is adhered to and data security is held to the highest standard for the protection of our tenants and clients.

April began her education at McNeese State University in Business Administration and then earned a Bachelor of Science from University of Phoenix. April joined Latter & Blum in 2012 and prior to that she served in the construction and real estate development industry in various management leadership roles. During her tenure with Latter & Blum, April worked as Controller before moving into her current role as Chief Information Officer. While with Latter & Blum, April has been significantly involved in working with providers, peers and trade organizations to evaluate and implement emerging technologies. She has a strong track history of implementing industry business process improvements through the use of technology, both in front office business operations and back-office accounting.